Please note: No allergen information on our website or brochure should ever be considered a guarantee, but simply a best faith effort to serve our customers. We have taken all of the normal precautions to avoid cross-contact, (eg. hand washing prior to preparing your food, a clean preparation area, clean utensils, etc.) however, we cannot totally eliminate the possibility of incidental gluten contact. The most likely source would be from flour present in the air at the time your food is prepared. Please consider this virtually unavoidable risk in advance of placing your order if trace amounts of flour, which might be present in the air, would cause you health issues.
